SAMANWAYA 2026; 23rd Edition

Since 2008, Samanwaya has concentrated on examining modern challenges affecting children and devising effective intervention strategies. This year, Samanwaya is being conducted in association with Kadambari Memorial College, Nepal, Johannesburg University, South Africa, KAPS, INPSWA and various other organizations dedicated to child welfare. The event centres on the theme "“Compassionate Intelligence for Child Protection” reflecting a broader perspective on addressing the well-being of children.

“COMPASSIONATE INTELLIGENCE FOR CHILD PROTECTION”

Children are the bedrock of any society, and safeguarding their rights, dignity, and well-being is essential for building a just and equitable nation. In India, where millions of children continue to face entrenched vulnerabilities, the principles of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC) survival, development, protection, and participation serve as a compelling reminder that every child deserves a safe, nurturing, and enabling environment.

Yet, despite legislative progress and growing awareness, India continues to grapple with serious issues related to child rights violations. Alarming levels of child abuse, physical, sexual, and emotional along with widespread neglect, trafficking, child labour, early marriage, and digital exploitation highlight the urgent need for strengthened protection mechanisms. Marginalized groups, including children from economically disadvantaged backgrounds, tribal communities, migrant families, and children with disabilities, face heightened risks of exclusion and harm. Ensuring social inclusion is therefore not merely desirable but indispensable, allowing all children to access education, healthcare, justice, and opportunities for meaningful participation in society.

India has established a strong legal and policy framework to address these challenges. Key legislations such as the Protection of Children from Sexual Offences (POCSO) Act, the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, and the Right to Education Act reflect the nation's commitment to safeguarding children from abuse and exploitation while promoting their holistic development. However, effective implementation, adequate resources, and coordinated action remain essential to translate these rights into everyday realities for every child.

While political, legal and governmental interventions are necessary, they are not enough. Compassionate intelligence leading to mindful actions must be integrated to promote ethical selfless and mindful problem solving (Kailash Satyarthi).

Social workers, positioned at the frontline of child protection systems, play an indispensable role in identifying risks, supporting survivors, strengthening families, and advocating for systemic reforms. Their expertise is vital in bridging gaps between policy and practice, ensuring that interventions are trauma-informed, culturally sensitive, and grounded in child rights principles.

The Samanwaya conference, with its theme "Compassionate Intelligence for Child Protection," provides a timely and critical platform to address these pressing concerns. By bringing together trainees, academics, and practitioners, it encourages robust dialogue on child rights violations, child abuse trends, challenges in India's child protection systems, and strategies for promoting compassionate intelligence. Such collective efforts pave the way toward a future where every child in India grows up free from violence, discrimination, and fear and where no child is left behind.
